DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

The listing of references in the specification is not a proper information disclosure statement. 37 CFR 1.98(b) requires a list of all patents, publications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office, and MPEP § 609 A(1) states, "the list may not be incorporated into the specification but must be submitted in a separate paper." Therefore, unless the references have been cited by the examiner on form PTO-892, they have not been considered.

Drawings

The drawings were received on March 22, 2004. These drawings are Figures 3 and 4. The corrections are approved by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 recites "consisting of" transitional expression in line 2 to indicate the claimed composition is a closed composition. But, instant claims 4 and 5 has opened said composition by adding Se/B to composition of claim 1. Thus, it is unclear how applicants define the transitional expression "consisting of". Therefore, said expression is treated as "comprising" for examination purpose until applicants clearly define said expression.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over USP 5582281 to Nakashima et al in view of JP 09316570.

Nakashima in col. 2, lines 35-64 discloses the features including the claimed copper base alloy composition and hardness. The difference between the reference(s) and the claims are as follows: Nakashima does not disclose the dispersed Mn-Si compound and Bi particle, and prefer mixed phases ($\alpha+\beta$) instead of single α -phase. However, dispersion of Mn-Si and Bi is material property which would have been inherently possessed by the material (JP 09316570, [0016]. With respect to the single α -phase that Nakashima in col. 3, lines 33-43 discloses α -phase alone is less rigid. JP 09316570 teaches to reduce β to 30% or lower in order to improve cold workability. As are evinced by cited references that all phases related to Cu-Zn alloys are known and can be adjusted according to the desired properties by ordinary skill artisan; therefore, the claimed single α -phase is considered as result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980).

Conclusion

The above rejection relies on the reference(s) for all the teachings expressed in the text(s) of the references and/or one of ordinary skill in the metallurgical art would have reasonably understood or implied from the text(s) of the reference(s). To emphasize certain aspect(s) of the prior art, only specific portion(s) of the text(s) have been pointed out. Each reference as a whole should be reviewed in responding to the rejection, since other sections of the same reference and/or various combination of the cited references may be relied on in future rejection(s) in view of amendment(s).

All recited limitations in the instant claims have been met by the rejections as set forth above.

Applicant is reminded that when amendment and/or revision is required, applicant should therefore specifically point out the support for any amendments made to the disclosure. See 37 C.F.R. § 1.121.
